

CONTINUUM'S WEEKLY UPDATE

January 20th, 2017

Flu Season

The CDC is reporting widespread activity of influenza in Virginia and Maryland for early January. If you have not received your flu shot, we still have the vaccine available at no cost in the McLean and Columbia offices. Give us a call and let us know when you would like to drop by to receive the immunization.

Reminders

- Please don't forget to notify the office of any change in your patient's condition.
- Please report your time accurately to the payroll department. We cannot pay you if we do not have your time reported.
- If you get a message from the after hours on-call coordinator, please do not call them back on the phone number that has shown up on your cell phone. Please follow the correct procedure and call the main number (703)506-0123 and leave a message that you are returning their call.

Reminder

Please refrain from discussing matters pertaining to pay rates with other nurses or with family members. Also, please do not discuss information about other families or other nurses you may know with either families or nurses. This information is confidential. Sharing confidential information is not consistent with professionalism

INFLUENZA

People who have the flu often feel some or all of these signs and symptoms:
